

Fashionistas of the 60s

Fashion in the 1960s ranged from classic lines to new age trends. In fact, according to RetroWaste website, "1960s fashion was bi-polar in almost every way." inspired by celebrities and original Fashionable First women's fashion (1960s www.victorxenialondon.com).

decade for both men and Chamber of Commerce

pictured

Audrey Hepburn. I can picture her as one of the Junior League Audrey Hepburn and other male and female actors of the 60s greatly 1961 movie Breakfast at Tiffany's continues to inspire women to Audrey.

The classic styles of dresses with conservative lines and business suits for men were political leaders. Jackie Kennedy Lady." Her slim skirt suits and pillbox Fashion Icons,

The television series Mad Men highlight women. Mr. Hoodhood would have Businessman of the year 1967, similar here. Mrs. Hoodhood likely dressed like

Onassis was "the hats continue to inspire the classic style of this dressed like the to the gentleman Jackie Kennedy, or Members in The Help. influence fashion. The want to dress like

Later in the 60s with the increase in of the counter-culture, a completely psychedelic colors prevailed. Long hair Twiggy was a model who became the also became popular during this time. been at home with a group of hippies a new president. This picture from the of the fashion on the so-called Hippie (<http://indianapublicmedia.org/arts/hair-time-capsule-60s/>) turmoil in the country, the popularity of British bands, and the presence different style emerged: mini-skirts, bell bottoms, tie dye, and and beards for men and women, but short pixie cuts for women as well. "face of the decade" according to 1960s Fashion Icons. The mod style Holling's sister was a self-proclaimed flower child. She would have protesting the war, and working to change the government by electing musical Hair show some generation.